ABSORBLETS

Many a man who thinks he is embracing an opportunity discovers later that he was merely hugging a delusion.—Chicago News.

With the salary doubled, there will not be so many by half who would rather be right than be president.—Charleston News and Courier.

"Good gracious, Jane, my hand is always in my pocket."

"No, it isn't John, or you would feel that letter there I gave you to mail two weeks ago."—Baltimore American.

Mifkins—I understand your daughter is earning to pay the piano.

Bifkins—Then your understanding must be better than mine. It sounds more like work than play.—Chicago News.

"Money talks, my boy, money talks," remarked Gotrox.

"Strange, though, with the amount of talking it does," commented young Ardupp. "It seldom gives itself away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mr. Brown and his family were standing in front of the lion's cage.

"John," said Mrs. Brown, "if those animals were to escape, whom would you save first—me or the children?"

"Me," answered John, without hesitation.—Everybody's.

The silence grew painful.

At last some one dropped a remark. Someone else picked up the conversation.

And while the droppers and pickers continued busy the silence was discontinued.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Will you walk into my parlor?"

Said Miss Spider to the fly.

"Not I," his flyship answered, As he winked his other eye.

"For your dinky so-called parlor—Well, it isn't in my line; It's nothing but a dining room; So none of it for mine."

It has been decided that the housefly and the mosquito must go," said one scientist.

"Yes," answered the other, "but they don't pay any more attention to the decision than they would to one imposing a fine of $29,000,000."—Washington Star.

The girl in the grandstand looked puzzled.

"Do you understand the language they use here?" she asked.

"Understand it!" exclaimed the wild-eyed fan by her side; "why, bless you, it's the only kind of language there is!"—Chicago Tribune.

The jury commission of San Miguel county, composed of F. B. January, N. B. Roseberry, and Perfecto Gallegos, has completed its labors in the selection of the jury list for San Miguel county for the ensuing twelve months. The list as completed has eight hundred names, carefully selected from the tax rolls and registration lists of the county.
